Shark Test

SHARK ENDS REPELLER TEST-This 12-foot shark brought an end to a test at Miami, Fla., of an electronic sharp repelling device — when it rammed the stern of the rubber life raft in which inventor John Hicks is seated. It nearly dumped Hicks into the shark channel at the Miami Seaquarium where 50 large sharks roam. Hicks climbed out of the raft and called it a day after this episode. Scientists, high-ranking Navy of-ficers and foreign observers witnessed the tests and some commented that the device was "most interesting" and had "great possibilities".

many persons are inclined to believe there is less need of funds to continue the battle against the disease.

This is fallacious reasoning because thousands of new cases develop every year and thousands of arrested cases become active again. In fact, last year in Missouri there were 1,415 new cases reported; in the nation there were 10,000 death victims.

So the battle is not yet won and, most unfortunately, a new strain of tubercle bacilli, which is resistant to the powerful drugs that have helped curb the disease, has been discovered.

Early discovery of tuberculosis is still a way of controlling it and therefore the mobile units, the clinics and private physicians must continue their vigilance: there must be no faltering in vigorous research. Funds are necessarily required for all of this which includes such activity on the local level and elsewhere as the tuberculin testing program in Pettis county this year which showed a grand total of 7,474 children and adults tested among whom were 432 er positive reactors. Farmers of Mexico Given New Land

By DREW PEARSON

GUERRERO, Mexico. - On a platform built outside this dusty, rain-thirsty city, President Adolfo Lopez Mateos stood handing out certificates to Mexican farmers.

Wearing blue jeans and wide sombreros. their gnarled faces bronzed by the hot winds that show no mercy to man, crops or livestock, they shook hands with the President of Mexico, eagerly clutched certificates of Agrarian land ownership, and passed on.

Some of them reached out and shook hands with the President of Mexico twice. Once before receiving their certificate, once afterward. For this was the biggest day of their lives. Hereafter they were the owners of their own land. It might be rocky and hilly, it might be drought stricken, but it was their land - to have and to hold, to keep and to cultivate - their land.

No wonder they shook hands twice with the President of Mexico.

Later that evening I talked with President Lopez Mateos about that ceremony. He was sitting in the rear of his private car as the presidential special chugged over the only new rail line built in North America in the past 50 years - The Chihuahua-Pacific Railroad, connecting North Central Mexico with the sea.

Interview With President

"I am glad you are seeing this part of Mexico," he said. "Its people are strong and silent. They helped to win the revolution that changed the course of Mexican history.

He referred to the long years of social revolution, beginning in 1910, when Mexico experienced some of the upheavals Cuba is undergoing today.

"I watched you give out certificates of land ownership to the farmers this morning," I told Lopez Mateos. "It was quite a touching

"They were emotional," replied the President, "and you can understand why. They had worked hard for their land, some of them for 25 years: so it was a great day. We gave away a total of 240,000 acres today.

"We feel that the backbone of democracy is to have the people own their own land," the President continued. "If this policy was followed in other Latin - American countries, there would be no danger of Communism. Unfortunately, in many Latin countries, those who have the power to govern, also own the land. So it is difficult to bring about land

"I noticed that you were also giving the farmers checks," I said. "What were they

Kennedy-Khrushchev and Big Mystery

Nevertheless, the No. 1 mystery is why Khrushchev has quieted

For months afterward Khrushchev worked overtime to force Kennedy back on his heels with speeches, talks, bomb-warnings, building the Berlin wall and, finally, resuming nuclear tests.

Kennedy, reporting on his meeting when he returned home, said the United States would stand firm. He added that Khrushchev should not be blamed for all the world's troubles, outlined a program to resist communism everywhere, and began a military

Since then Kennedy has talked repeatedly of his determination not to let Khrushchev get away

But never, in all this long-range and often long-winded dialogue, has either man said an unfriendly or derogatory word about the other. This has left the door open for future reasonable dealings.

Khrushchev even sent his newspaperman son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, over here to interview Kennedy at White House request, giving the President a chance to state his position in full in the Russian government newspaper,

Little Chats on Public Notice

"ROAD CONSTRUCTION AHEAD" In driving along the highway,

the motorist often comes upon a warning sign that reads "Road construction ahead," or some equivalent. Sometimes it states that this makes the highway legally closed to traffic, but explains that traffic is maintained and the motorist may proceed, or words to that effect. In essence, such a sign, erected some distance ahead of the section where the construction or improvement is in progress, is a form of public notice. The sign puts the motorist on notice as to what to expect. Often he is told that he may proceed at his own risk. Being in a perpetual hurry most drivers seem willing to take this chance. In principle a public notice or legal advertisement published in a local newspaper has much in common with the highway warning sign described. It may not be exactly a warning, but it puts the public or specific individuals on notice as to a proposed action and gives them an opportunity to

FLYING MINUTEMEN OF MERCY

In a crisis-torn world punctuated almost daily with explosive Berlin situations, atmospheric pollution by megaton bombs, antimissile missiles, sonic booms rippling from needle - nosed supersonic bombers, and threatening boasts by arrogant leaders devoid of humanitarianism, it is a comforting thought to know that the free and untrammeled spirit of '76 burns brightly in the hearts of American men and women.

The spirit of '76 was born in. and fanned alive by a small bad of determined citizens nearly 200 years ago. Since then, the ranks of our armed forces have always been swelled by John Q. Citizen who answered unselfishly and without hesitation when an emergency arose.

Today - Dec. 1, - we pause for a moment to observe the 20th anniversary of another band of hardy pioneers who have unselfishly and unhesitatingly dedicated their skills, and even their lives, to the perpetuation of that spirit of '76 and of humanitarian community service to mankind.

This is Civil Air Patrol-whose members answered the call to duty 20 years ago and volunteered their services as civilian "Flying Minutemen." Their small singleengine aircraft droned up and down the coasts, searching out enemy submarines which threateed the peace and security of this nation.

Transition from anti-submarine patrol to aerial search and ground rescue was a simple task to the "flying minutemen." Pilots of evey category - from those flying the giant passenger aircraft to the private pilot on a weekend hop - looked to Civil Air Patrol in time of emergency. Downed planes were spotted, and lives were saved.

Civil Air Patrol's activities began to spread. Hurricanes, floods, tornadoes, and other natural and man-made disasters found Civil Air Patrol volunteers lending a hand. Give Teen-agers a Glimpse Into Parental Problems

By RUTH MILLETT

Newspaper Enterprise Association The fact that both parents and their children usually go through the most critical times of their lives simultaneously does much to compound the "growing up" problem, says a psychiatrist. Well, isn't it about time we let our teenagers in on that particular fact of life? Parents today all seem to know that the teen years are difficult ones for their children. The experts have spelled it all out for the parents and warned them of the need for patience and understanding during the years when their children are struggling toward adulthood.

So why shouldn't the kids be told that life at this particular time isn't too easy for their parents either, that teen-agers are not the only ones with problems, are not the only ones who sometimes find life difficult to cope with, are not the only ones who can't have everything they want when they want it?

Why don't we let teen-agers in on the fact that while they are

Teen-agers might be less demanding, more understanding and more of a comfort to their parents if they could be made to see them a little more clearly.

So far the experts have been concerned only with helping parents to understand their children. But shouldn't it work both ways? Shouldn't teen-agers be taught a little about their parents' problems and the need for THEM to show some understanding, too?

Auto Cemetery Not End of Car's Line

Parts Seekers Strip 'Em; Dealers Sell, 'Em

By LARRY EMBRY

EVER WONDER what happened to that old car you traded in several years ago for a new model?

It may still be providing miles of service for its owner but if its age told on the tired metal or if it was involved in a wreck it may be lying in an auto salvage yard dying a slow, decaying death.

Cars aren't like humans. When wrecked or too old to run under their own power they wind up in the junkyard — not a cemetery and their rest is far from peaceful.

A trip to local salvage yards illustrates the ironic fate of a once proud machine whose throbbing engine powered its sleek chassis on many miles of business and pleasure trips for its owner. But all is not bleak for the dead automobile. Unlike humans, reincarnation is more than a theory in automobiles and in a few years part of their steel may be back on the highways in a new car.

When a scrapped or wrecked auto comes to a salvage yard a process of putting it back on the road in the form of rejuvenated metal begins. Depending on its condition, the car may rest at the junkyard for some time while part seekers practically strip it bare, or it may be torn apart immediately to begin its trip to the steel mill.

Local salvage dealers report later model autos that have been wrecked may bring up to $500. The salvage dealer regains his investment from those who may need parts from the "wreck" for damaged or only slightly damaged doors, fenders and bumpers are popular items along with interior accessories like cigarette The hook is baited, the line ture rack, this device was guar-

Auto Cemetery Not End of Car's Line

Parts Seekers Strip 'Em; Dealers Sell, 'Em

By LARRY EMBRY

EVER WONDER what happened to that old car you traded in several years ago for a new model?

It may still be providing miles of service for its owner but if its age told on the tired metal or if it was involved in a wreck it may be lying in an auto salvage yard dying a slow, decaying death.

Cars aren't like humans. When wrecked or too old to run under their own power they wind up in the junkyard — not a cemetery and their rest is far from peaceful.

A trip to local salvage yards illustrates the ironic fate of a once proud machine whose throbbing engine powered its sleek chassis on many miles of business and pleasure trips for its owner. But all is not bleak for the dead automobile. Unlike humans, reincarnation is more than a theory in automobiles and in a few years part of their steel may be back on the highways in a new car.

When a scrapped or wrecked auto comes to a salvage yard a process of putting it back on the road in the form of rejuvenated metal begins. Depending on its condition, the car may rest at the junkyard for some time while part seekers practically strip it bare, or it may be torn apart immediately to begin its trip to the steel mill.

Local salvage dealers report that cars sold just as "junkers" usually bring around $15, while later model autos that have been wrecked may bring up to $500. The salvage dealer regains his investment from those who may need parts from the "wreck" for vehicles of the same or a similar model. One dealer pointed out undemaged or only slightly damlike the up and then I found work instantly when the disc was
